

FOXGLOVES

The Octavia Hill Garden by Blue Diamond with the National Trust. Designed by Ann-Marie Powell. Sponsored by Blue Diamond Garden Centres and The National Trust. RHS Chelsea Flower Show 2024 (Image credit: RHS / Neil Hepworth)

Foxgloves are a Chelsea classic, typically found growing in several show gardens, blooming in a range of colors, from white to pink to peach. These spring biennials are ideal for adding vertical interest to garden borders.

This year, bright pink foxgloves were planted to brilliant effect on The Octavia Hill Garden, designed by Ann-Marie Powell. When considering how to grow foxgloves, these self-seeders are biennial, flowering in their second year. Leave spent blooms to go to seed, which will help increase your foxglove collection for subsequent years.

Foxglove plants are available to buy online from Nature Hills.